LEGAL NOTICES.

IN THE SUPREME COURT OF THE DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA, IN THE SUPRIME COURT OF THE DISTRIOT OF COLUMBIA,

The 7th day of February, 1894.

Henry G. Lewis vs. Bitth M. Lewis, alias Edith Dombey, No. 1827. Eq. Doc.

On motion of the pisintiff, by Mr. Edward L. Gles, his solicitor, it is ordered that the defendant, Bitth M. Lewis, alias Edith Dombey, cause her appearance to be entered herein on or before the first rule day occurring forty days after this day; otherwise the cause will be proceeded with as in case of default. The object of this suit is to obtain a divorce, "a vinculo matrimonii," upon the ground of willful and uninterrupted desertion for more than two years. A copy of this order be published once a week for three successive weeks in the Washington Law Reporter and in The Evening Star, previous to said day.

The object, in reality, pro-ably fell hundreds of miles from Connect ably fell hundreds of miles from Connecti-cut. But so strong is the conviction of every beholder that he can go right to the place (or very near it) where the meteor fell that nothing but the equal confidence of others, fifty miles away, that they can locate the very place, will convince him that he is mistaken. In the case of the meteorite of last Saturday evening, it probably fell into the sea—where for ages most of these visitors from outside space have fallen—at some point nearer the West Indies than Connecticut. Deep-sea dredgmost of these visitors from outside space have fallen—at some point nearer the West Indies than Connecticut. A great many of them, of course, also hit the solid land; and these, unlike the rest, are apt to be heard from. But it is a very rare occur

This fact (like the other, that gives most of them to the sea), is in harmony with the law of mathematical chances; for only a relatively small area of the land of the globe is occupied by human habitations—and the sea is three times as large as the land.

Another interesting fact about these aerolites is that none of them reveal any element not before known on earth. They are ment not before known on earth. They are made up of iron, nickel, cobalt, etc., but in proportions wholly unknown in any earth-

LATE NEWS FROM HAWAIL

Boycotting Minister Willis-An Interview With the Former Queen. The Australia arrived at San Francisco

The minister of foreign affairs address notes asking the various dipiomats who failed to respond if they had received invitations sent them to a reception on January 17. The replies of the representatives Canavarza, are friendly in tone, earnestly expressing the regret that they had falled to respond and take part in the cefebration of the day. The British and French representatives, Messrs. Wodehouse and Vizzavona, use vague explanations that they were guided by the aspect of existing they were guided by the aspect of existing circumstances. The government will not pursue the subject further. Its object, that of having neglected invitations acknowledged and put on record, is gained.

An extremely violent sensation was produced in Honolulu among both parties by disclosures made of the queen's attitude in Minister Willis' dispatch No. 3, which was received by late mails. Her desire to behead the leaders of the uprising against her was a severe shock to both parties.

A still greater sensation of a different sort, however, was produced by the list shown to Minister Willis by ex-Marshal Wilson of persons selected to advise and assist in carrying out the severe measures proposed by him to crush out the other party. Under the existing circumstances such a list becomes a black list.

Among the queer situations brought about by the abortive attempt to restore the queen is that of M. Verleys, now in Honolulu, who arrived with credentials as French commissioner and congul general, which are such a list becomes a black list.

Among the queer situations brought about by the abortive attempt to restore the queen is that of M. Verleys, now in Honolulu, who arrived with credentials as French commissioner and congul general, which are addressed, not to the existing government, but to Queen Liliuokalani. He had been waiting for a long time in Paris on salary for the government to change here and for the government to change here, and left for Honolulu at once on receipt by the French foreign office of an official telegram from Washington announcing that the queen had been restored. M. Verleys has now to wait for credentials to the provisional government.

Theophilus Davies, the guardian of Kaiu-lani, is pointing out that the only safe course now is to get back under the constitution of 1887. Nowhere else, he says, can the ground of stability be found. That, of course, is a return to monarchy, and means Kaiulani. Mr. Davies gives up the Interviewing Liliuokalani. The New York World correspondent suckalani, the ex-queen. He was conducted to a parlor furnished much as a parlor in an ordinary American house of wealth. Liliuokalani sat near one end of this ships and he has recommended a change in room. Immediately behind her chair stood their batteries. Each of these vessels was an immense black screen. It rose three

The queen's appearance certainly bore no indication of suffering from disease. Her face is very full, and the only lines are those of age. She is more than fifty years old now, and her hair is turning gray. She old now, and her hair is turning gray. She is very dark—darker than the average full-blooded Hawaiian. She has very dignified manners, and makes rather an impressive appearance, the effect being heightened by her large stature. She speaks English without the trace of an accent.

She would not discuss the political situa-tion, saying only that she loved the Ha-wailan nation, always wished the best for do her utmost for its welfare. She talked, however, about the United States.

"I have been there twice," she said. "I was there last with my brother, King Kalakaua, and his wife, Queen Kapiolani, and, of course, I enjoyed the trip very greatly. We saw so much. We were in New York, which is a grand city, and we went to Washington. That is very beautiful, and the Capitol is a noble building."

The queen talked also about books and on various topics of the day. She has read The queen talked also about books and on various topics of the day. She has read considerably, particularly in history, and knows the structure of the governments in most great countries. She said she had passed her time chiefly in playing the piano, crocheting and reading. She is very fond of the piano, and is a composer of some merit. Several of her songs have taken their place in the standard music of Hawaii. The good American who may meet a queen some day and be at a loss what to say first will be glad to know that Queen Liliuokalani began this conversation with an observation about the weather. She remarked that it was a very fine morning, as marked that it was a very fine morning, as in fact it was.

During the interview A. S. Cleghorn, brother-in-law of Liliuokalani and father of Kaiulani, the air apparent, came in. Mr. Cleghorn said that Kaiulani was at present at Wiesbaden, Germany, and he did not know when she would return to Hawaii. The queen and Mr. Cleghorn asked some questions about America, and when the World correspondent departed Capt. Nowlein assured him voluntarily that there was no truth in the rumors about the queen's lack of health. "She is in just as good health as she ever was," said the captain in corroboration of the queen's own statement, "and that means there is nothing the matter with her at all, and I am here all the time and therefore I have a good opportunity to know." marked that it was a very fine morning, as

Mr. Whills, or his own choice, will leave Honolulu after the relations of the United States with these islands are adjusted.

In the case of Consul General Mills, the attack is much more virulent than that upon Mr. Willis. Mr. Mills came here first as Mr. Blount's secretary, and that is why the war is made upon him. He has had a long and useful service in the Department of State at Washington, and was the private secretary of Mr. Bayard when the latter was Secretary of State. He was chosen to accompany Mr. Blount, and did his work so well that he was sent back as consul general to Honolulu.

The office is one of the most important and lucrative of all the consulates. The charges against Mr. Mills are multifarious. According to them, he has broken all the vicance of the graph of the young nut, which is soft and jelly-like, is nutritious and of a delicate flavor.

As might be expected in the case of a plant of such value, it is often carefully and extensively cultivated in many countries, size, shape and quality of the fruit, are now known. The cocoanut is propagated by seeds; the nuts are sown in nursery beds, and at the end of six or eight months the seedlings are large enough to plant. The plants are usually set twenty-five feet appart each way in carefully prepased beds filled with rich surface soil. charges against Mr. Mills are multifarious. According to them, he has broken all the commandments, and would break others if there were any to break. Seriously, the charges against Mr. Mills have been most absurd, and a careful examination shows that they are all due to one thing, namely, that he was Mr. Blount's secretary.

Chief Naval Constructor Highborn Proposes to Lighten the Lond of the Battle Ships.

Chief Naval Constructor Hichborn has submitted a proposition to the Secretary of the Navy looking to an important change in the armament of several of the new vesceeded in having an interview with Liliuo- sels. He expresses the belief that the battleships Massachusetts, Oregon and Indiana are too great for the stability of the intended to carry in its main battery four 13-inch guns, eight 8-inch guns, and four an immense black screen. It rose three or four feet above her head and extended nearly all the way across the room. The chair was large and of heavy black wood. Chair and screen served very well for the suggestion of a throne and a canopy. Probably they were so intended.

The queen was dressed entirely in black. She wears black always now. Her dress was not relieved at either wrists or throat by white or any suggestion of color. Two rings were the only jewelry she wore. One was of plain gold, evidently a wedding ring, and the other was a small diamond. They were on the same finger. She held in one hand a fan made of the brilliant plumage of Hawalian birds. The other hand rested upon an arm of her chair.

The queen rose when the World correspondent was presented and bowed. Then the resumed her seat. She is sightly lame. The queen was asked about her health.

"My health has been very good," said the queen, "and remains so. I am not suffering from any chronic aliment. I have always enjoyed very vigorous health, and the reports that I am or have been in a critical condition from heart disease are untrue."

The queen's appearance certainly bore no indication of suffering from disease. Her

FOUGHT LIKE A MANIAC

An Exciting Scene During Mass in s Brooklyn Church. A sensation was created yesterday morning in St. Paul's Roman Catholic Church, the church, Rev. William J. Hill, at the steps of the altar by his assistant, Rev. Dr. Patrick V. McDonald. The trouble occurred

Dr. McDonald has been appointed by Pastor Hill to celebrate the mass at 10 o'clock, and also the high mass at 11. During the celebration of the former the worshipers were amazed to see Dr. McDonald approach Father Hill, who entered to assist at the celebration, and strike him a violent blow, felling the pastor to the floor.

Before Father Hill could arise, Dr. McDonald came to the chancel rail, and, gesticulating wildly, exclaimed that there had been a conspiracy between Father Hill and Bishop McDonnell to drive him from the diocese. He then turned and again assault.

Parishioners finally rushed forward and held him until the arrival of officers. He was subsequently taken to St. Petersburg through the bishop's secretary that he would not be made a regular priest of the diocese, and this fact weighed upon his mind. He has many friends, who believe

MOST USEFUL TREE TO MAN.

Coconnut Furnishes Food, Shelter and Employment to Thousands of People. where its roots penetrating the sandy soil may drink freely from clear underground springs. Of all trees it is regarded by Garden and Forest as the most useful to man, furnishing food, shelter and employment to hundreds of thousands of the human race. In tropical countries, especially provisional government part of it, has been fully employed in an attack upon Mr. Wills, the American minister, and Mr. Mills, the American consul general. This animus is directed against Mr. Willis, because it was his duty to demand the surrender of the provisional government in accordance with the orders of Mr. Cleveland and Mr. Willis, because it was his duty to demand the surrender of the provisional government in accordance with the orders of Mr. Cleveland and Mr. Mills, because it is useful; the roots are considered a remedy against fevers; from the trunk houses, boats and furniture are made; the leaves furnish the thatch for houses and the material from which baskets, hats, mats and innumerable other articles are the provisional government in accordance with the orders of Mr. Cleveland and Mr. Gresham. The newspapers—and they are backed by the radical section of the provisional government—are continually demanding that Mr. Willis either resign or be given his passports.

Some care has been taken to make it unpleasant for Mr. and Mrs. Willis socially. But they have visited very little since they came here, though they hold a recption every Friday afternoon. Mr. Willis is rarely outside of his cottage or the hotel dining room. The World correspondent has spoken to him about these attacks, but he shows no feeling on the subject.

Whether Messrs. Dole and Damon indorse this policy it is difficult to say. The World correspondent was told yesterday that if a republic were formed here one of its first acts would be to give Mr. Willis and Mr. Mills their passports. There is a belief that Mr. Willis, of his own choice, will leave Honolulu after the relations of the United States with these islands are adjusted. In the case of Consul General Mills, the itants. The plants are usually set twenty-five feet apart each way in carefully prepared beds filled with rich surface soil. Once established, a plantation of cocoanuts requires little care beyond watering, which is necessary in its early years to insure a rapid and vigorous growth. In good soil the trees usually begin to flower at the end of five or six years, and may be expected to be in full bearing from eight to twelve years. Thirty nuts from a tree is considered a fair average yield, although individual trees have been known to produce an average of 300 nuts during a period of ten years. An application of manure increases the yield of the trees, although probably the value of the additional crop obtained in this way is hardly large enough to justify such expenditure. In recent years the cocoanut has been cultivated on a very large scale in British Honduras, Jamaica and other in British Honduras, Jamaica and other parts of Central America, as well as on the northern coast of South America and the West Indies. Cocoanuts bring all the way from $10 to $28 per $1,000, according to quality.
